

How Are Secret Societies Molding Gen Z to Further the New World Order?

Sixbert SANGWA • August 24, 2024

In these challenging times, Christians must be aware of the spiritual and cultural forces influencing our younger generations, particularly Generation Z. As believers, we are called to "test everything; hold fast what is good" (1 Thessalonians 5:21). This article humbly exposes how secret societies—a global hierarchy working towards establishing a New World Order—have been systematically shaping Generation Z, those born between the mid-1990s and early 2010s, to unknowingly contribute to their agenda.

Evidence suggests that influential groups are guiding societal changes toward a "New World Order"—a global governance system that could undermine national sovereignty and promote centralized control. Throughout history, secret societies like the Illuminati and Freemasons have allegedly operated behind the scenes, shaping political, economic, and social structures. Today, their influence may be seen in subtle yet profound shifts in cultural norms, educational curricula, and media narratives. Generation Z, raised in a highly digitized and media-saturated world, appears particularly susceptible to these influences.

These clandestine groups have reportedly manipulated global events to further their agenda. Operating covertly, they've strategically influenced various aspects of society—including education, media, and technology—seemingly to mold Generation Z according to their plans.

Generation Z, as digital natives, have been immersed in technology since birth. While this connectivity brings benefits, it has also led to concerning trends, including a decline in intellectual capacities. Studies have shown that, despite having access to an unprecedented amount of information, many young people struggle with critical thinking, problem-solving, and the ability to engage in deep, reflective thought. This paradox can be attributed to the superficial engagement that digital platforms promote—characterized by quick scrolling, short attention spans, and a preference for visual over textual content.

The current trend points to a generation that is losing its ability to think deeply and critically, making it more susceptible to manipulation and control. The constant stream of information and addictive nature of social media have created a generation that often struggles with critical thinking and deep analysis. Secret societies are believed to have exploited this vulnerability by promoting platforms and technologies that encourage shallow thinking and instant gratification. This potential erosion of intellectual capacity could make Gen Z more susceptible to manipulation and less likely to question presented narratives.

One of the most alarming trends among Generation Z is the rapid erosion of traditional values, particularly those rooted in Christian teachings. Secret societies have been instrumental in promoting lifestyles that often contradict biblical principles. Through their influence on media, popular culture, and educational institutions, these hidden groups have worked to normalize behaviors and attitudes that challenge traditional Christian values. They promote moral relativism and reject absolute truth, directly contradicting Jesus' clear statement in John 14:6: "I am the way, the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me."

The advocacy for unrestricted personal freedom, often at the expense of moral responsibility, has led many in Generation Z to embrace lifestyles that conflict with biblical principles. For example, the promotion of gender fluidity and the redefinition of marriage have created confusion and moral relativism among young people. These ideologies not only contradict biblical teachings but also lead individuals away from God's truth. Gender fluidity challenges the biblical understanding of male and female as created by God (Genesis 1:27), while the redefinition of marriage undermines the sanctity of this institution as established by God (Matthew 19:4-6).

This erosion of traditional family values and social norms is another tool used by these hidden groups to advance their agenda. By promoting individualism over community and instant gratification over long-term commitment, they weaken the social fabric that has long been the backbone of Christian societies. The ultimate goal of these secret societies is to create a generation more likely to accept the idea of a New World Order, paving the way for the centralized global authority they seek to establish.

The rise of social media platforms, often controlled by these secret societies, has created echo chambers that reinforce divisive ideologies and undermine social cohesion. These platforms, while offering connectivity, often lead to isolation and a breakdown of real-world relationships. As Christians, we must remember the wisdom of Ecclesiastes 4:12: "A cord of three strands is not easily broken," emphasizing the strength found in unity and community. This biblical principle underscores the importance of maintaining strong social bonds and resisting the individualistic tendencies promoted by these hidden groups.

By infiltrating educational institutions and media, these hidden groups have systematically undermined the moral foundation of Gen Z. The promotion of hedonistic lifestyles, the normalization of previously taboo behaviors, and the ridicule of traditional values have left many young people adrift, searching for meaning in fleeting experiences or material possessions. Moreover, by influencing curriculum development, they have promoted ideologies that align with their global agenda. For instance, the emphasis on global citizenship and cultural relativism in schools often overshadows traditional values and national identities.

The most concerning impact of secret societies' influence on Generation Z is arguably the rise of nihilism—a belief that life lacks meaning, purpose, or inherent value. This worldview appears to be gaining traction among young people. Current societal trends reveal a generation that, while technologically savvy, is increasingly disconnected from traditional values and beliefs. Surveys indicate that Generation Z is less likely to affiliate with organized religion or to believe in absolute truths. Instead, many are embracing a form of relativism, where truth is subjective and moral boundaries are blurred.

By promoting a worldview that rejects the existence of objective meaning or purpose in life, these hidden groups have created a generation more likely to accept the idea of a New World Order. A generation that lacks a strong sense of purpose and feels disconnected from traditional values is more open to radical changes in societal structures. This erosion of values aligns closely with the rise of nihilism, where nothing is sacred and everything is questioned. This nihilistic mindset could be fertile ground for manipulation by those seeking to establish a New World Order.

This openness, combined with a desire for global solutions to worldwide problems, could potentially pave the way for the centralized global authority that secret societies seek to establish. As Christians, we must remind ourselves and the younger generation of the purpose God has for each of us, as stated in Jeremiah 29:11: "For I know the plans I have for you—this is the Lord's declaration—plans for your well-being, not for disaster, to give you a future and a hope."

Secret societies have masterfully used technology to further their agenda, particularly in manipulating Generation Z to cause conflicts and unrest. The recent political turmoil in Kenya serves as a prime example of this strategy, which is believed to be implemented in other countries soon. By leveraging social media platforms and targeted disinformation campaigns, these hidden groups have successfully incited division and discord among young people.

The pervasive influence of social media, the rise of artificial intelligence, and the push for a cashless society are all tools being used to shape Generation Z and prepare them for a global governance system. These technological advancements, while offering convenience and connectivity, also provide unprecedented opportunities for surveillance and control. Additionally, they enable the manipulation of public opinion and the orchestration of social unrest on a massive scale.

As these events unfold, we're reminded of the prophecy in Revelation 13:1-10 concerning the rise of a beastly global leadership. Given these developments, we must remain vigilant and discerning in our use of technology and our approach to emerging philosophies and trends. Let's continually seek God's wisdom to navigate these challenging times.

Conclusion

Generation Z stands at a critical crossroads, facing two divergent paths that will shape their future and the world they inherit. On one side lies a treacherous route paved with nihilism, purposelessness, and manipulation by those who seek to control and mold society according to their vision of a New World Order. This path, orchestrated by hidden powers and secret societies, aims to erode traditional values, promote moral relativism, and create a generation disconnected from their spiritual roots.

On the other side, however, lies a path of hope, purpose, and fulfillment found in a deep, transformative relationship with Jesus Christ. This path offers true enlightenment, not through esoteric practices or self-divinity, but through the redeeming power of God's love and the guidance of the Holy Spirit.

As followers of Christ, we bear a tremendous responsibility to guide Generation Z towards this path of light and truth. We must:

- Stand firm in our faith and biblical principles, serving as beacons of hope in an increasingly secular world.

• Expose the works of darkness (Ephesians 5:11) by educating young people about the deceptive ideologies and hidden agendas that seek to manipulate them.

• Foster genuine relationships and provide spiritual mentorship, demonstrating Christ's love in tangible ways.

• Encourage critical thinking and discernment, equipping Gen Z to navigate the complex digital landscape and recognize truth amidst misinformation.

• Pray fervently for this generation, invoking God's protection and guidance over their lives.

By remaining vigilant, prayerful, and committed to sharing the transformative truth of the Gospel, we can help Generation Z discover their true identity and purpose in Christ. Together, we can empower the Gospel to resist the pull of a New World Order that seeks to undermine God's design for humanity and instead embrace the eternal hope and unshakeable foundation found only in Jesus Christ.

As we navigate these challenging times, let us heed the words of Romans 12:2: "Do not be conformed to this age, but be transformed by the renewing of your mind, so that you may discern what is good, pleasing, and perfect will of God." By anchoring ourselves and the younger generation in God's unchanging Word, we can face the future with confidence, knowing that the light of Christ will always overcome the darkness.
